Capt. W. L. Neale,

Of Madison County.

Our Frankfort Letter.

[Special Correspondence of the Union Press.]

FRANKFORT, May 26.

Mr. J. A. Jacobs gave the long promised exhibition of his pupils last evening, and it must be said that it did not do more than his promise. Late before the hour announced, the vast hall of the House of Representatives was crowded.

Mr. J. gave a review of his connection with the institution for the last forty years, and also of his several exhibitions. He explained the system, and also by actual views, showed to his audience the progress from the first to the last step. The difficulty did not consist in the first step, but in the progression. Altogether the exhibition was a pleasant and instructive one, and was what I wish the one to do, because this evening marks a great success.

There is a slight discrepancy in my letter of yesterday. Where I am made to say that the bill of relief to H. Huston, the pseudo rebel who asked for certain privileges, it should have been a bill of indemnity, and not a bill to pay to 10 years. Now as this bill had a good deal of bearing on the celebrated "expatriation law," it was the cause of some sharp debating, and the vote showed most conclusively the side of the body on that question.

The bill of relief was again brought up, and Gov. Bramlette Col. A. G. Hodges, Hon. J. F. Bell, Hon. F. L. Cleaveland, and Hon. F. M. Ray were examined for the defense. The examination elicited a few facts of no general importance. I send them to you in my report of the proceedings.

The rain to-day which has been steadily falling, has had the effect of keeping visitors out of the lobbies of the Senate.

This case will consume more time in its prosecution than the session will allow, and I do not think the session will adjourn for more than five weeks at least.

Messrs. Skiff & Gaynor opened last evening to a splendid house, notwithstanding the extra attraction of Mr. Jacob's exhibition, and the rain. They are undoubtedly the best troupe of negro minstrels that have ever appeared here. They have for Levington to-morrow evening. May they have every success. If the rain should subside by evening, the ball at the "Capitol" will be crowded. Every arrangement has been made to make it a success. Messrs. S. & G.'s minstrels furnish the music.

I send you Mr. Wm. E. Kinney's speech, published in your paper of Wednesday, is being extensively copied and spoken of by the press of the State.

There is no news of any importance here.

LOUISVILLE HOSPITALITY.—We presume that the Cincinnati Council left our city yesterday with rather a poor idea of our hospitality. They were shown fully and apparently to every one. That there was not the slightest excuse for it is certain. Our citizens are of right interested in the action of the General Council. That body was elected to look after the interests of our city, not to damage them. If the interests of the citizens are right, then we are at a loss to know what is. The scandalous treatment of the visitors yesterday, besides making a laughing stock of the city, will injure its trade to a greater extent than is generally supposed.

The facts, however, are, that a body of gentlemen from a neighboring city paid us a friendly visit to attempt to promote the welfare of both cities. When they arrived in sight, our council deliberately shut the doors in their faces. Our Mayor was on hand and became the butt of the criticism at the wharf, and extended them the hospitalities of the city in a manner that deserves the approbation of the citizens. The visitors had heard of the action of our council, and seemed to receive from the Mayor what that body refused to tender. Some of our citizens are right, and some are not.

Cross-examined.—You state that your body was shot from behind, how do you know that? Because I saw him running towards me before I heard the report of the gun, and he fell on his face. Were there any other negroes there at the time of the shooting? I do not know; I could not see them. Was your brother in the habit of carrying arms? No, sir.

Re-examination.—Was your brother a loyal man? He had been so considered by everybody; he had been Deputy United States Marshal; he was Deputy United States Marshal; he was a good and distinguished man.

J. W. Robb called.—Did you see McGrath on the 19th of May, and if so, in what condition? Yes, sir; he was dying. Did you examine the wound; and if so, describe it. It was a gun shot wound in the right side, about three inches below the shoulder, and, counting out between the sixth and seventh ribs, it caused immediate death.

John B. Hastings gave testimony to the same effect as John McGrath. He searched dead to find his weapons. He had no knife. After shooting him, he ran across from the market house to the court house. Could not recognize the man that did the shooting. Of the negroes who ran from the market house after the shooting, only one had a gun—the last one. I expected to be shot when I helped to pick up McGrath. I do not know why, but I could see no cause for the shooting of McGrath.

John E. Matthews testified that he had a conversation with the negro; that the negro told him that he had shot McGrath because he (McGrath) had drawn a pistol on him and said he would not let him go. Matthews said that McGrath did not do it; that McGrath drew a pistol on him, and that he shot him in self defense; he said twice that he had shot him; I offered no inducement or threats for this confession; he was voluntary. In this he was contradicted. He testified he had no positive knowledge that he was over five feet nine inches in height.

R. H. Maulsby testified that he was a brother-in-law to Michael O'Laughlin; he came from the south in August; he was a brother in the business and feed business in Washington till the fall of 1863; his brother then removed from Washington, leaving him in charge of the business there; Michael had collection and receiving orders from customers, the same sent him from the north; he was here on and off during the time his brother gave up business till the 14th of April. Witness knew Booth intimately; Mrs. Booth owns property opposite my house; Michael and Willian were schoolmates of Booth's; Michael's intimacy with him was so great that he was allowed to sit at his table.

Lieut. Ed. Mitchell, 5th Ky., testified that he was with Matthews when he had the conversation with the prisoner, and corroborated Matthews's statement; we questioned the prisoner in a number of ways and used no threats; I do not know that McGrath was a loyal man; I do not know whether it was the custom to lock the market house or not.

Judge Caldwell testified that the market house was the property of the Shelby county court by purchase; that McGrath had a right to use it as a store room; there was no right to lock it, but I directed McGrath to lock it.

Corporal Peter Smith testified that he was present in the market house; that Mr. McGrath came in and asked prisoner who gave him permission to come in the market house; he was granted permission; that his Captain gave him permission; McGrath told him that he would or could make him and the Captain suffer for it; the prisoner told him to go off and not talk about his Captain; as McGrath started to leave the market house, he was shot; I do not remember at what time the prisoner got his gun.

Gold Market.

NEW YORK, May 26.—Gold has taken a sharp downward turn, the demand for export being less active. Owing to the withdrawal of orders for cons'rs' account for shipment, the price is decidedly weak. The market is very much the result of a foreign export movement, intended for speculative purposes outside of the gold room.

Officers of the army of the Potomac had decided that they marched better.

They moved with a certain amount of self-reliance, and determined. One could not distinguish officers from men except by uniforms.

The privates and officers seemed equally intelligent and manly bearing.

On the other hand, the East India troops showed more pure discipline, and there was a marked distinction between officers and men in point of culture.

True Bills Against Davis and Breckinridge.

NEW YORK, May 26.—The Commercial's

Washington special says the grand jury for the District of Columbia yesterday found true bills of indictment against Jeff Davis and Breckinridge.

The overt act was the raid in July last within the District of Columbia and jurisdiction of this Court; the killing of citizens and destroying property, they being present in person. District Attorney Cushing and Lieut. Col. B. C. Breckinridge, who had had considerable experience in the particular branch of business. Persons visiting his hotel will be sumptuously entertained.

Trial of the Conspirators.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The court room was again crowded to capacity with spectators of both sexes, the largest part of them being unable to find seats. The main attraction is the appearance of the negroes. After the trial of the negroes, yesterday, the negroes had been removed. Rev. Father Lannan, living near Beantown, Md., and Rev. Father Young, pastor of the Roman Church, were several severals, and testified that Mrs. Surratt had always had the reputation of being a woman of Christian character. These witnessess were the only ones that have been present since the shooting.

Mr. Maubusy, brother-in-law of O'Laughlin, testified that the accused was engaged in the produce business with his own brother in Washington, and that O'Laughlin and Booth were school fellows, and that he was estimator for them. The court adjourned for O'Laughlin to bring to prove that he made no flight or evasion, but was willing to surrender himself to the officers of the law. The witness said he surrendered to O'Laughlin, and that he was not apprehended.

Several other witnessess were produced to show the bad treatment of the negroes.
